Sprewell Bluff Park—It's In Our Nature

Sprewell Bluff Park is one of Georgia's best kept secrets and is known by locals as the hidden gem. The park is a camper's escape, a fisherman's paradise, a paddler's grand adventure, and a hiker's dream. Visitors may escape the mundane and experience nature in comfort at this River Ridge Campground in one of the cabins or RV sites provided. This 1,372-acre park is best known for its breathtaking views, diverse ecology, and recreational amenities. Visitors may cool off in the gently flowing Flint River, skip rocks across the water, and have a picnic along the river's edge or by the playground.

There is also a boat ramp in the day use area, making it a breeze for paddlers to access the river. With 12+ miles of trails winding throughout the park, visitors may take a long or short hike, run, or stroll along the riverbank or up the rocky bluffs. Bird watching enthusiasts may spot tanagers, warblers, osprey, woodpeckers, and bald eagles along the river or resting in the cliffs and forest edge.

The Flint River is one of only 40 rivers in the U.S. to go undammed for more than 200 miles, keeping the water fresh and the fish plentiful.
